Barger, Cowart & Kenney Welcomes New Consultant

Atlanta, Ga., August 1, 2005 – Barger, Cowart & Kenney, LLC (BCK), an Atlanta-based Corporate Psychology firm, welcomes Robert C. “Bob” Johnson, Ph.D. to its team of consultants. Dr. Johnson’s experience includes serving as Division Psychologist in the United States Army while stationed in Germany, as well as serving as Chief of Combat Stress Control Services during a tour in Iraq.

Barger, Cowart & Kenney is continually seeking to add experienced, licensed psychologists to its team of professional consultants. Dr. Johnson’s experience and interests are in the areas of leader development, organizational well-being, and quality of life issues. Dr. Johnson received his Ph.D. in Counseling Psychology from Colorado State University, with a specialization in School Consultation. “The addition of Dr. Johnson to the Barger, Cowart & Kenney team will strengthen and add further depth to the services we provide,” stated Dr. Charles Cowart, Managing Partner of Barger, Cowart & Kenney. “His experience overseas makes him a great fit for our international consulting business.”

Dr. Johnson has served extensively as a psychological consultant to a variety of populations, including executive level leadership, medical professionals, school district administrators, teachers, and parents. He has also provided expert forensic testimony on numerous occasions. During his commission with the Army, Dr. Johnson participated in the personnel selection process for special programs, provided 360° feedback, and assisted in team-building. Additionally, he developed and implemented a standardized, norm-based organizational assessment process that was later adopted throughout his Division.
